U-turns in budget, says Digvijay

● FROM OUR BUREAU NEW DELHI

Senior Congress leader Digvijaya Singh on Thursday pointed out two important U-turns taken by the Modi Government in the Union Budget. One U-turn is on Aadhaar and another on the rural employment guarantee scheme, both brought by the previous Dr Manmohan Singh-led UPA government. Digvijaya tweeted to draw attention.

Tough contest in the offing in Dharampur

● MANOJ POKHRIYAL Dehradun

It will not be a cakewalk for three-time Congress MLA and Uttarakhand Sports and Forest Minister Dinesh Agarwal to win Dharampur constituency in Dehradun this poll season with BJP fielding two-time mayor Vinod Chamoli from the seat.

The BJP ticket to Chamoli has not gone down well with the supporters of his own party leader Umesh Aggarwal, who was viewed as a strong contender for Dharampur constituency, a Congress bastion.

Chamoli, however, is seen campaigning hard to garner votes and if he succeeds in coaxing Umesh's supporters, who had allegedly vandalised the party state office after ticket distribution, it would pose a big challenge to Congress leader Dinesh Agarwal.

Agarwal on his part has trashed the candidature of Chamoli, saying he does not have a "single achievement" to his credit. Chamoli is the mayor of Dehradun Municipality since 2008.

"There is no challenge from Chamoli. I wonder on what basis he got the ticket to fight against me. I chal-

Hitting back at Dinesh, Chamoli said, "Let him say that it is easy for him to win the election. Let the election gets over, everything will be

"As a mayor, I have a long list of achievements, including establishment of bus shelters, flyovers, widening of roads and increasing sewerage connection to 80 per cent of the area from just 20 per cent," he said.

He said the election outcome would be in favour of BJP as "aam admi stands with the Modi government" and the people want "change" as Congress government in the state is "engulfed in corruption". —PTI

Sweet justice for Goan teacher

Appointment in minority institution open to judicial review, rules SC

● FROM OUR BUREAU NEW DELHI
A Goan economics teacher has won a 12-year long legal battle for fair play against the Diocesan Society denying her the post of principal and invoking Article 30 that gives protection to the minority institutions.

The Bench of Justices Adarsh Kumar Goel and Uday Umesh Lalit answered this question early this week, allowing appeal by Ivy C. DA. Conceicao by holding that autonomy of a minority institution does not dispense with the requirement to act fairly and in a transparent manner.

It held that a minority institution is free to select and appoint a principal and not bound by the seniority principle alone, but whether an individual eligible candidate's right has been violated by not adopting fair procedure is liable to be tested in exercise of power of judicial review under Article 226 of the Constitution since right of choice of the institution has to be fair, non-discriminatory and rational.

Since this aspect was not examined by the Goa Bench of the Bombay High Court in its judgment on August 14, 2012, the Apex Court set aside the ruling and remitted back the case to the Goa Bench for "a fresh decision in accordance with law," directing all parties to appear before it for further proceedings on February 15.

Army refuses to handover two jawans wanted in recruitment scam

Patna: Bihar Regimental Centre, Danapur has declined to handover two of its havildars, Devle and Shekhar, both from Maharashtra to Patna police telling a team of police led by additional SP, Rakesh Kumar Dubey that they would be first questioned by the senior army officers and only after their approval, they can be handed over to police which obtained arrest warrant from chief judicial magistrate court of Danapur on Wednesday. The two havildars are wanted in the recruitment scam for the general duty soldiers' recruitment examination.

Over 1300 candidates were selected for written test held on Sunday. It was alleged the question papers were leaked out. Physical test was held in November last year.

Senior SP of Patna police Manu Maharaj said Brigadier of Danapur cantonment of BRC has informed him that the two havildars were being questioned. Patna police had arrested five persons and they had named the two havildars against whom Patna police obtained arrest warrant from the court.

When Patna police went to Danapur cantonment, army authorities refused to hand

Booked for seeking help from ULFA-I

Guwahati
A suo-motu case has been registered against Assamese filmmaker Himangshu Prasad Das on charges of waging war against the country by allegedly seeking help from ULFA(I), through an open letter, to run his film in theatres across the state.

"We had registered a suo-motu case a few days back against Das for trying to contact sources or persons inimical to the interest of India," Guwahati Police Commissioner Hiren Chandra Nath told PTI here.

The police had issued a notice asking Das to appear before it, but he has not come yet, Nath said.

Asked if Das will be arrested, he said, "We will at first interrogate him and then decide."

Guwahati Police registered the case under various IPC sections including 121 (waging or attempting to Assistant Commissioner of Police (Cyber Unit) Suleman Ali registered the case on January 28.

The director had written the letter following hall owners' decision to withdraw his

Responding to the letter, Barua allegedly called up local TV channels and asked the hall owners to run Das's film if people wanted to watch it, or else ULFA(I) would oppose it.

Assam Police Director General Mukesh Sahay had earlier said that police would look into the issue. —PTI

Travel portals go ga-ga over new budget

New Delhi

The push for digital payment platforms and removal of service tax on IRCTC bookings online in the latest Union Budget have enthused the travel industry, who believe the initiatives will make travel easier and cheaper across the country. The industry, which was endorsed by Finance Minister Arun Jaitley as a sector of economic importance, has welcomed the proposed decisions, saying that the steps will make travel more "accessible and reduce friction between the user and service provider".

According to online travel portal Skyscanner, that recently took on board a direct booking application, the travel industry has already seen a hike in the number of transactions made via smart phones over the past one year, and the trend is only going to catch up with the recommendations under the budget. "We recently added low cost carrier 'Scoot' to make booking and payments online and on app seamless and easy. Similarly, with a 30 per cent jump in searches witnessed between January 2016 and 2017 through smart phones, we know that there is an impetus in online transactions. "Online travel companies are embracing this development with the singular aim to make travel easy and simple," says Reshmi Roy, Growth Manager, Skyscanner India. The budget noted that "a mission" would be set up with a "target of 2,500 crore digital transactions" for the upcoming fiscal year, besides strengthening the digital payment infrastructure and grievance handling system. Sharat Dhall of Yatra.com said that the newer policies to promote the digital economy would contribute immensely towards developing a Arvind Bhatia from Indian Routes, a travel agency, feels the move will not only make travel cheaper for the public, but also benefit agencies. "From the tourism point of view we consider it a great move as going forward we see technology playing a great part today and paving our way for the upcoming future. It will allow agents like us to make use of this platform more and also enable offer competitive rates for the overall package for group tours," says Bhatia.

Aloke Bajpai, who has co-founded ixigo.com, says that the budget has laid out some "big investments" for the industry, both in terms of infrastructure and technology. "Kicking off on a good note, this year's budget brought happiness to many with the removal of service charges on bookings made through IRCTC - indicating the government's focus to drive more digital transactions," he says. He also lauded some of the announcements in the Railway budget like 'Raksha coach', 'clean my coach services', 'coach mitra' facility for registering complaints and installation of bio-toilets, which he feels would "attract back travellers by improving cleanliness, safety and passenger comfort". Another important development was the introduction of the special tourism zones anchored on SPV (Special purpose vehicle) that will be established in partnership with the state governments.

However, Kapil Goswamy of BigBreaks.com feels disappointed with the industry's concerns about high tax rates being "ignored" by the government, and feels that waiving off service tax on IRCTC online bookings would "not help the industry directly". "Even if you consider the indirect benefit, the saving that travelers will make the withdrawal of service tax on online train bookings is too small (minimum Rs 46 and maximum Rs 138) to encourage travel and tourism and make a difference to the fortunes of the travel industry. "Of course, we will be passing the benefit to our customers, but it is too minuscule and inconsequential for us," says Goswamy. —PTI
